UV matte finish

Engineered Timber boards have been individually cured with a urethane coating to protect the surface against UV damage.

Authentic brushed surface

The gentle brushed treatment brings out the natural timber grain for a more natural, grainy surface texture.

Seamless timber floor look

We use a tongue and groove system that makes installation easy and prevents shrinking, warping, or separation of the boards over time.

Easy to clean and maintain

Engineered Timber takes the hard work out of floor maintenance. It's easier to clean than real timber, and will retain its stunning premium looks for longer.

Micro bevelled edging

Each board features micro bevel edges for a traditional timber floor look that can fit seamlessly into a wide variety of interiors.

DISCLAIMER: Timber is a natural product; each board is different in its own unique way. Timber flooring has natural features and character, with knots and variations in colour. It can scratch, dent and will react towards direct sunlight, moisture and humidity in its environment.

We have a Dunlop Timber Underlay to suit you and your hard floor.

As more people choose multi-level living, sound insulation has never been more important. The noise made from footsteps, moving furniture, or falling items can be annoying for others in the building. To tackle this problem, Dunlop has a complete range of hard flooring underlays for all applications that easily surpass the industry standard set by the National Construction Code (formerly known as BCA) to support your new floor long term.

We recommend the following for Engineered Timber floors:

 ThermaAcoustic

 Timbermate

 TIMBERCUSHION

 AQUACOUSTIC

 Advantage 3
